Knowing Your Plants Water Needs

September 9th- Wednesday at 6 p.m.

Am I watering my plants too much or not enough? This is a question that gets asked frequently, especially during the summer months. In this class a landscape expert will go through easy ways to figure out if your plants are getting the right amount of water. Learn how to give your plants the water they need, where they need it, while staying water smart.

Home Energy Efficiency

September 19- Saturday at 9 a.m.

Are your energy bills on the rise, but you're not sure where to start to become more efficient? Our energy expert will walk you through basic home efficiency problem areas and tips on how to lower your energy use while staying comfortable.

Irrigation Controller Basics

September 26- Saturday at 9 a.m.

Did you know that your plants' water needs change monthly, as should your irrigation controller settings? If you are unsure how to adjust your irrigation controller, this is the class for you. An irrigation and water efficiency expert will cover some basic functions and programming abilities of a typical irrigation controller.

Tree Pruning Basics

October 3- Saturday at 9 a.m.

Is that cute young tree in the yard growing into a rangy blob? Pruning trees the wrong way or at the wrong time of year can be fatal. Learn from a certified arborist how to reduce the height and width of your tree without causing it harm.

Immunity Boosting Foods

October 7 – Wednesday at 6 p.m.

Many whole foods that are found locally can pack an immune-boosting punch! Food and nutrition expert Melanie Albert of Experience Nutrition, will talk about fruits, veggies, and other foods that can naturally give your system a boost. She'll also prepare a delicious plant-based farm-to-table recipe to get you started.

Top Desert Plants for Fall

October 21 - Wednesday at 6 p.m.

Fall is a great time for desert plants and many provide a wave of beautiful color and texture as the summer heat fades away to milder days. A desert plant expert will talk about several desert plants that really shine and add landscape pizzazz in the fall season.

Backyard Composting and Worms

November 7 – Saturday at 9 a.m.

Tired of sending food and green waste to the landfill? In this class a composting and waste expert will walk you through the benefits of composting and what items you can collect to make your own soil amendment. Worms are nature's composters and our teacher will talk about how you can use these beneficial critters to help your compost reach the next level.
