INTRODUCTION & METHODOLOGY

Peoria's growth in the past nine years has been exponential. Since the 1997 Historic Resource Survey, development on the city's southern border with Glendale, the expansion of commerce along the Bell Road Corridor, new neighborhoods north of Loop 101, and various annexations in the vicinity of Lake Pleasant increased the city's size to nearly 178 square miles and more than 124,000 inhabitants. The Peoria Sports Complex attracts thousands of visitors every year with spring training, community celebrations and various entertainment events. The city's future is glaringly bright; however, the simple gem of downtown, the humble, farm-generated root of all of the Peoria's success, continues to struggle against time's careless hand.

A different variety of change is evident in downtown Peoria than in the rest of the city. Home renovations and business turnover lend an element of subtle agitation to the area. A handful of stalwart commercial entities remain nonetheless, and their longevity can be fueled by an injection of redevelopment and preservation interest in downtown. Such multi-decade businesses as Wilhelm Garage/Automotive, Kosier's Hardware and Ideal Jewelers, to name a few, continue to attract repeat customers bent on supporting these local establishments.

The purpose of this survey update is to provide a better understanding of the changes that have taken place in downtown Peoria in the last decade, to illustrate the delicate nature of historic preservation in the city, and to provide clear recommendations and guidelines regarding the future of Peoria's historic business district and first neighborhood. It is also intended as a second volume or companion piece to the original 1997 Historic Resource Survey; the original work provides most of the information for this addendum. The nature of this update lends to its compact size; Carriker and Sturgeon's research and subsequent context report could not be approved upon. Since the publication of the 1997 survey, Kathleen Gilbert's superb and well-illustrated summation of Peoria's history (More Than a Century of Peoria People, Progress, & Pride) has introduced new residents to their adopted hometown. Improving upon either of these works in terms of downtown Peoria documentation was not entirely possible. Using both sources along with modern city-published documents facilitated the shaping of this document.

Carriker and Sturgeon's 1997 survey indicated twenty-seven contributing or individually eligible properties within the survey area out of eighty-five total surveyed. State Historic Preservation Office (SHPO) and National Register of Historic Place (NRHP) require upwards of 75% and 80% contributing properties to form a historic district; the original survey offered only 31.7% contributing properties. An update of the original survey added thirty properties to those previously surveyed for a total of 115. The contributor list had gained in number to thirty-one contributing or individually eligible properties out of 115. This brings the contributing percentage to 26%. Therefore, a creative means of historic preservation, restoration and redevelopment will need to be implemented to improve the current appearance and integrity of downtown Peoria. Personal communication with the SHPO's National Register Coordinator Kathryn Leonard indicated the office would not consider a "jogged" style of historic district, which only includes contributing properties and disregards those that do not contribute.

The area of this survey update is identical to that of the 1997 document: 87th Avenue to the west, Washington Street to the north, Grand Avenue to the east and Monroe Street to the south.

The information contained within the eighty-five previous survey forms first had to be verified. Twenty-two of these forms were edited; changes in integrity, eligibility, and disposition were noted, if applicable. Properties requiring form editing were re-surveyed and documented with the State Historic Preservation Office's new update form. Fresh photographs were also taken for documentation purposes.

Thirty new properties were surveyed from scratch. Research was completed on building history, digital photographs taken, and information documented on official SHPO survey forms. Extensive histories of every building was deemed unnecessary as that level of disclosure is more appropriate for a National Register nomination rather than a local historic district designation.

Information for the updated and newly surveyed properties was discovered in a variety of locations from the local to state level and included field visits to every property. The archives of the Peoria Arizona Historical Society provided brief descriptions and histories of some of the most prominent buildings along with a bevy of historic photographs illustrating the original disposition of downtown. The Arizona State Library, Archives and Public Records provided the newspapers and city directories to cull and the SHPO provided the necessary forms and examples to complete the survey. The Planning & Zoning Division of the Community Development Department of the City of Peoria provided recent maps and documents indicating future plans for downtown Peoria.

THE IMPORTANCE OF INTEGRITY TO HISTORIC DISTRICTS

“Old” does not necessarily mean important. Integrity, perhaps the largest issue facing downtown Peoria, is essential for district designation and individual building listing. Buildings with strong integrity exhibit unchanged and well-maintained elements from its original construction, such as windows and fenestration (arrangement of windows on the wall), original wall sheathing (such a clapboard siding or brick), and intact parking structures (such as carport or garage). Additions, if there are any, are sympathetic to the building’s style and massing and do not detract or distract from the historic building.

Buildings with low integrity have had many changes to their façades and little resemble their original design. In downtown Peoria, this includes the prevalence of stucco as wall sheathing, aluminum frame windows, and the closing-in of carports or garages for the use as more interior space.

Integrity is part of the greater concept of historical significance. Properties are first evaluated for the fifty-year National Register of Historic Places age requirement. If the building is more than fifty years old, its style is analyzed. Is it architecturally significant to the area? Next, has the building been altered? Changes to a building over time are acceptable as long as they do not disrupt the building’s style and massing. Finally, did anyone of importance construct or once live in the building? Peoria’s early 20th-century growth is peppered with businessmen, farmers, builders and investors without whom the settlement would never have succeeded. It is important to indicate the buildings to which these individuals have had ties, thoroughly document them (in the form of National Register nominations) and educate the public about Peoria’s rich past.

HISTORICAL CONTEXT UPDATE

The historical context originally put forth by the 1997 survey report ended with World War II. As more properties approach and surpass the fifty-year mark making them eligible for official recognition, these post-World War II properties gain importance. In downtown Peoria, a handful of striking properties indicate the changes evident in the postwar period. At war's end, building materials suddenly became available and returning soldiers clamored for their own real estate. Tract home neighborhoods such as Levittown on Long Island, New York and John F. Long's Maryvale here in the Salt River Valley ushered in a new era of construction techniques. Home building utilized assembly line construction methods to reduce time, labor and cost.

Peoria's outskirts saw some custom postwar construction. The majority of new neighborhoods, however, sprung up closer to Phoenix. Glendale exhibits a number of postwar neighborhoods with block and brick homes on large, grassy lots, a type of construction that managed to largely elude Peoria until the 1960s and 1970s.

The changing nature of auto travel in the mid-20th century greatly affected Peoria including 83rd Avenue's realignment and the city's address renumbering in 1955. The most direct route from Phoenix to Las Vegas (and even Los Angeles) required passing through Peoria along U.S. Highway 60. With the total completion of Interstate 10 across Arizona in the late 1980s, U.S. 60 became little more than a scenic and commuter route and a direct line to Sun City and Wickenburg, lessening business traffic in the area.

As mass-annexations became popular for Scottsdale and Phoenix in the late 1950s, Peoria too began to grow through accumulation of county lands. Downtown, however, remained much the same until the Arizona Department of Transportation realigned 83rd Avenue across Grand Avenue. Buildings were removed and those that remained were "spruced up" with stucco sheathing in 1967.

ASSOCIATED PROPERTY TYPES & ARCHITECTURAL CONTEXT

The construction date range is identical to that of the original survey, save the addition of the ranch style's entrance onto Peoria's building scene. The high-style of ranch architecture was initiated by California architect Cliff May in the 1940s. Elements of his rambling original designs, scaled-down to fit the small city lot, were utilized across the U.S. in the mid-20th century. Board and batten siding, rough-sawn porch supports, living room picture windows, single-carports, high bedroom windows and a general horizontality all indicated the ranch aesthetic. The style dominated home building for more than forty years and only recently has been supplanted by the large-scale, Spanish-tile roofed modern home.

Building materials in this updated survey are identical as those put forth in 1997 and therefore no changes are required. Building types indicated in the original survey also require no addendum here. Architectural styles are identical to those listed in the previous survey. The ranch style, as briefly profiled above, is the only change to the original survey.

Please see list of newly surveyed properties in Appendix B for full listing of building style analysis.

RECOMMENDATIONS

The non-contributing nature of the majority of Peoria's surveyed properties makes it impossible to draw boundary lines for a standard historic district officially recognized by the State Historic Preservation Office and The National Register of Historic Places.

This does not exclude downtown Peoria, however, from conservation or a city-based preservation-recognition movement. The lack of National Register properties (the only example in the entire city being the Central School building on 83rd Avenue) offers a unique opportunity for the future. The following is a list of possible contenders for listing on the National Register of Historic Places, which would include listing on the state's register, and listing on the to-be-created Peoria historic register:

National Register-Eligible Properties in Downtown Peoria

| Inventory # | Address or Name | Construction Date |
|--------------------|----------------------------------|--------------------------|
| 2 | 8276 W. Monroe Street | 1948 |
| 30 | Presbyterian Church | 1899 |
| 35 | 8415 W. Madison Street | 1929 |
| 44 | 8491 W. Madison Street | 1925 |
| 45 | 8484 W. Madison Street | 1940 |
| 49 | 10320 N. 84 th Avenue | 1947 |
| 75 | Edwards Hotel | 1918 |
| 84 | WPA Jail/City Hall | 1934 |
| 85 | Women's Club | 1919 |
| 106 | 8344 W. Washington Street | 1948 |

Not every contributing property is named, as they are not all National Register eligible. Properties appearing in the Register must be exceptional examples in the community, state national level of significance. The above list indicates those properties, which have the best prospect of being listed. Other properties may be considered for nomination at the whim of the Peoria Historic Preservation Commission.

Listing at the state level offers access to property tax reductions, special grants, loans and professional assistance through the State Historic Preservation Office.

At the city level, recognition via street signage, improvements to landscaping, brochures, and kiosks can introduce the casual visitor to the history of Peoria. Wall-mounted plaques with photographs and brief histories of the buildings could be utilized to bring attention to the city's rich agricultural, commercial and residential history. An example of a successful plaque program can be found in Flagstaff where nearly every high-profile, history-rich building has been briefly documented on the building's exterior. The City of Phoenix, in conjunction with Valley Metro is currently developing plaques for placement at the new light rail stations. Each will indicate an historic structure nearby worthy of visual exploration with a brief description of the building (or district's) history. The promotion of certain key re-uses and fostering a close relationship with members of the downtown community (residents and business people alike) are all options that have been met with success elsewhere in the Valley.

The city's Planning & Zoning Division may initiate most of these activities through its administering of the Peoria Historic Preservation Commission. A downtown conservation district where strict guidelines direct redevelopment, height restrictions, and building styles are available options. Acquiring façade easements and grant funds would return Peoria's commercial district to its former self. Through the Commission, a city-specific list of historic properties (which may or may not lead to National Register nominations), city-sponsored historic walking tours with the commission or its representatives and other special events that draw residents to Peoria's heart would only bring attention to the need for preservation.

The largest threat to Peoria's historic buildings is the increasing loss of integrity through modernization and incompatible renovations in the form of exterior modifications.

Revitalization and historic preservation, as witnessed in Phoenix, Mesa, Tempe and Glendale, can create vibrant business and residential districts while maintaining historic integrity. Discovering the proper formula to catapult a struggling downtown is the principal challenge.

Well-designed guidelines and regulations, using successful versions as examples, can help create a bustling downtown. In conjunction with neighborhood input, quality re-fill and in-fill of vacant lots and maintaining current levels of acceptable integrity will ensure that Peoria's downtown survives and thrives.

A modicum of creativity is required to improve downtown Peoria. With inspired grant writing and funding, strong direction and promotion, nearly anything is possible.

HISTORIC PROPERTY INVENTORY UPDATE FORM

This form is used only to provide additional information about a property previously documented with a State of Arizona Historic Property Inventory Form and on file at the State Historic Preservation Office. A property within a proposed historic district being nominated to the National Register of Historic Places must have information no less than three years old at the time of submission.

Inventory No: 21 Historic District (if applicable):
Address: 8269 W. Jefferson Street City or Town: Peoria

HISTORIC SIGNIFICANCE Note any additional information concerning the property's significance since initial recordation.
Comments: N/A

CONDITION

Describe the current structural condition of the property

- Good (well maintained) Fair (some problems apparent) Poor (major problems; imminent threat) Ruin/Uninhabitable

Comments: N/A

INTEGRITY

Describe any modifications/alterations to the property not previously noted on the original Historic Property Inventory Form.

Home has been covered in stucco since first form was completed.

PREVIOUS PROPERTY STATUS

- Listed individually Contributor Noncontributor Date Listed:
Determined eligible by Keeper of National Register (date:
Previously recommended eligible Previously recommended ineligible Date: 6/20/97

If property was previously determined ineligible, briefly state reason (age/integrity)

RECOMMENDATIONS OF ELIGIBILITY (opinion of SHPO staff or survey consultant)

- Property is is not eligible individually.
Property is is not eligible as a contributor to a potential historic district.
More information needed to evaluate.

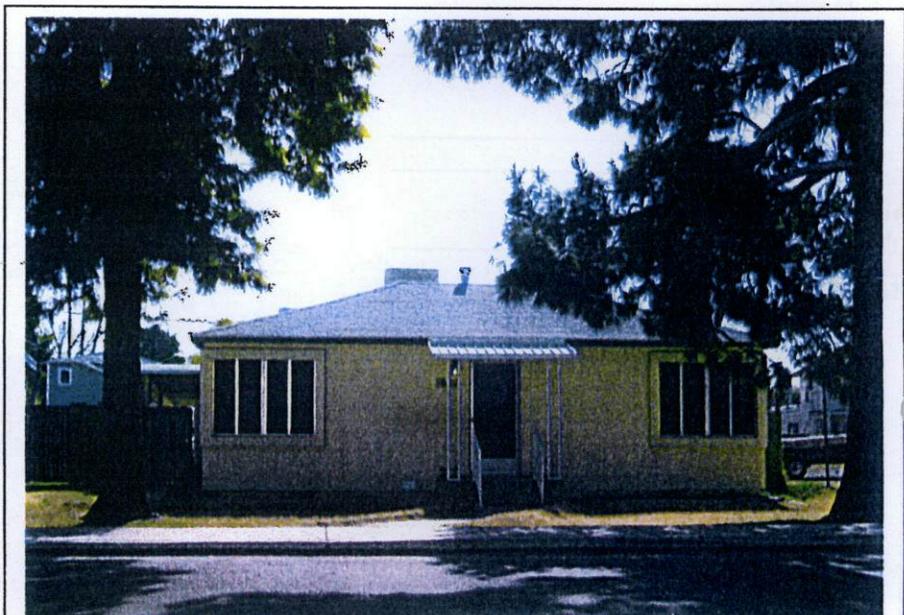

If status has changed, state reason:

Original form lists lot number incorrectly. The correct lot number is 8. Original form also lists home as demolished (which it is not).

Continuation Sheet No. 1

Post World War II construction was slow to increase due to a shortage in materials in the United States. Growth during the first few years after the war in Peoria was gradual, and marked by the construction of modest homes on vacant lots. Existing homes were remodeled as materials and funds became available. When the shortage of materials relaxed, construction in downtown Peoria increased.

Considerable remodeling in the form of window replacement, stucco sheathing application and enlarged, modern garage space excludes this home as a contributor to an historic district, or individual eligibility.

Constructed during Peoria's first booster-induced building boom, this modest home illustrates the town's entrance onto the map of Valley agricultural successes. Individual builders satisfied demand and the town's residential area began to take shape. A drastic slowdown in construction would not occur until the onslaught of the Great Depression.

According to the Peoria Arizona Historical Society ephemera files, this was originally the home of prominent Peoria insurance salesman Thomas F. Thurston and his wife Teresa. Thurston was also a one-time secretary of the Peoria Chamber of Commerce and a partner in the Osborn and Thurston Trading Company.

Due to sheathing replacement and inappropriate additions, this home has lost integrity that would have made it eligible as a contributor to an historic district. It is, however, a well-maintained home and faces what remains as Peoria's only central, open, farmland.

Continuation Sheet No. 1

Constructed during Peoria's first booster-induced building boom, this grand-for-the-area home illustrates the town's entrance onto the map of Valley agricultural successes. Individual builders satisfied demand and the town's residential area began to take shape. A drastic slowdown in construction would not occur until the onslaught of the Great Depression.

The C.A. Robinson House was originally 45 E. Monroe Street. According to the Peoria Historical Society ephemera files, it was Robinson who filled in the front porch (which has since been rectified). The large, looming addition at the back was constructed during Robinson's residence. Robinson rented to teachers from the schools. Robinson owned the grocery store at 8273 W. Washington and was president of the Peoria Chamber of Commerce.

The building's association with the prominent Robinson catapults it to a short list of important structures; the questionable integrity, however, lends doubt to its eligibility. A close, visual inspection of the home (perhaps in conjunction with a National Register nomination), may shed light on the nature of the home's changes and present appearance. The assessor's build date of 1922 clashes with that of the historical society's files which state it was built in 1912. Robinson's store on Washington Street opened in 1918 which makes both the 1912 and 1922 dates plausible.

This minimal traditional-style home was built prior to Peoria's second building boom after World War II. Its style and design speaks to the continued simplicity of the small farming community at mid-20th century.

A number of changes have taken place on the building, which compromise its integrity. The home sports no original character integral to a home constructed circa 1950.

This exceedingly simple, minimal-traditional style home is unusual for the downtown. It occupies a prominent intersection, which it shares with St. Harablamos, a vacant lot and a parking lot. Its style evokes the dire economic situation of the Great Depression.

Constructed either by the Powers or Puckett families, both were, at one time, residents here. Mr. Harmon Powers was a laborer; other Powerses in residence were farmers and machinists. It is unknown what the Pucketts did for a living.

CONTINUATION SHEET

Name of property: Wilhelm Garage Continuation Sheet No. 1

Formerly 110 S.E. Grand Avenue, the building was originally constructed as Jennings' Garage in 1918 during Peoria's first real building boom. In 1928, Joseph Wilhelm bought the shop. For the next two years, the building remained Jennings' Garage until its new owner renamed it. Height of garage bays is attributed to the size and nature of cotton picking machine maintenance, farm machinery maintenance being the primary sources of income for the business. A blacksmithing and welding shop were in use here until 1983. Owned since 1979 by the Gyder family, the company now offers multiple locations in the Valley for its customers. Business has grown to include former location of Manuel's Place (8255 N.W. Grand Avenue).

Stucco sheathing and window replacement exclude building from contributing to an historic district; however, the importance of the garage as a continuously operated business downtown should not be discounted.

CONTINUATION SHEET

Name of property: 8255 W. Grand Avenue

Continuation Sheet No. 1

Manuel's (pronounced locally as "Man-yuhl") Place (a drinking establishment) once occupied an important position in the social and political fabric of Peoria. Owner Manuel Leyva was once a mechanic for the Wilhelm Garage and later became a Peoria Councilman. Manuel and his wife Esther once lived at 8456 W. Washington Street. According to a November 4, 1955 article in the Peoria Times and Valley Farm News, Manuel's Place was the first in Peoria to sport a neon sign (now removed), which was installed that same year. The former address was 104 S.E. Grand Avenue.

Within the past two years, Manuel's Place storefront has been sheathed in stucco and the roof and rear wall removed. Wilhelm Garage currently owns the site and is expanding into it. There is no indication from the street of the bar that once occupied the spot and welcomed men and women alike.

Complete lack of integrity excludes Manuel's Place from eligibility and as a contributor to an historic district.

Longtime location of Thomas F. Thurston's Insurance and Real Estate Company, the building currently houses Peoria Pool Supply. Former address was 100 S. E. Grand Avenue. Thurston lived at 8250 W. Monroe Street (see survey form number 87). Thurston's other interest was the Osborn & Thurston Trading Company, which dealt primarily in real estate, hay, grain and cotton sales. Thurston was once secretary of the Peoria Chamber of Commerce.

This commercial-style building has changed drastically since its construction roughly 80 years ago. An "updating" treatment circa 1967 removed all previous character and integrity from the building. Treatment may be reversible, but damage to adobe is possible. The building is ineligible for inclusion into an historic district.

Wood's Pharmacy occupied this location for 45 years. The original address was 15 E. Washington. Wood's Pharmacy was also an agent and stop for the Pacific Greyhound Lines (also known as the Western Greyhound Lines). A bench for travelers sat out front. The pharmacy was operated by Carroll M. Wood and Charles K. Vickrey (who was a one-time mayor). The pharmacy closed in 1973. The building is currently occupied by Ledezma's Discoteca and Electronics store.

The building was originally constructed during Peoria's biggest building boom in the early-20th century after a devastating fire that roared through downtown.

This commercial-style building has changed drastically since its construction roughly 80 years ago. An "updating" treatment circa 1967 removed all previous character and integrity from the building. The feature most striking about the former Arizona Bank building (current Ideal Jewelers) is the original signpost for the Arizona Bank sign. After the Arizona Bank moved north on Grand Avenue in the 1960s, it is surmised their signpost was reused by a subsequent business; if not, it is unknown how the post would remain.

Besides being the location of the Arizona Bank and Ideal Jewelers (for more than 40 years), Hammond's Grocery once utilized the space. John Hammond was a one-time director of the bank.

The commercial-style building has changed drastically since its construction roughly 80 years ago. An "updating" treatment circa 1967 removed all previous character and integrity from the building. Treatment may be reversible, but damage to brickwork is possible. The building is ineligible for inclusion into an historic district.

The stepped false-front of the former Saliba's Pay'n Takit/Park & Shop still remains at the top of this building, which has since been divided to accommodate two separate occupants (Peoria Florist and Biker's Edge). James and Nellie Saliba ran the Pay'n Takit and the Park & Shop, the city's first supermarket and competed with other grocery operations on Washington Street such as the Sun Maid (now Carniceria Sonora).

The former address was 3 E. Washington Street.

This unassuming, early to mid-20th century commercial building was once home to the Lazy J Café and Bud's Barber Shop, according to the ephemera files at the Peoria Arizona Historical Society. The original address was 111 S. Central. Maxine and Lucille Gray of Phoenix operated the Lazy J Café. It still houses Bud's Barber Shop.

Although remodeling appears to have taken place on this building, the changes have been completed within the last 50 years and therefore within the building's period of significance. One of the original occupants is still intact, and even though non-operational, the bulk of the original neon sign is still in place. This building is eligible for inclusion in an historic district, pending the discovery of an accurate build-date (which is not on file with the County Assessor).

Formerly La Tapitia Café, this building currently houses K&E Lock & Key. The former addresses were 121 and 201 S. Central. Eleanor Perez operated the La Tapitia and resided at old 134 N. Central.

It is surmised that the board and batten siding is not original, but this would require closer inspection of the building to know absolutely. The origins of the siding could reverse the decision on this form and declare the K&E Lock & Key a contributing building to an historic district.

Besides the Edwards Hotel on the same block further west, the Hood is the most identifiable, high profile building in downtown Peoria. It was constructed in 1920 by area real estate investor Mrs. Mabel J. Hood.

Former address was 1 W. Washington Street. The first, storefront floor was once a location of Western Auto, which had occupied 8273 W. Washington Street (currently C&L Awards). It has also housed a church. The upper floors are offices; prior to the construction of the Peoria High School, classes were held on the second floor.

Extensive remodeling has taken place on the exterior of this two-story commercial-style building. Sheathed in stucco with windows replaced on both the second and first floors, it is ineligible for inclusion in an historic district.

Originally built as the Paramount Theater, the most recent use of this building was as the Peoria Fire Station #1, a conversion which took place when Peoria incorporated in 1954. It also housed the offices of the Peoria Justice of the Peace and the John L. Meyer Insurance Agency.

The Paramount Theater originally screened films in the Peoria Women's Club House building across the street. When business increased, operator O.O. Fuel built this building. The Paramount name was only briefly attached to the theater, however. Fuel named the theater after himself, and at that point Mrs. H.G. Parrish managed it. The final name change was to the Peoria Theater, which seated 450 people. During this incarnation in 1947, a fire swept through the building. The theater was rebuilt (including the installation of CinemaScope projectors), only to be converted to a fire station roughly ten years later. The last theater owners were O.K. and Sybil Leonard who later owned and operated the Apache Drive-In at Globe.

Former address was 15 W. Washington Street.

The conversion of the building into a fire station in the late to mid-1950s destroyed the character and integrity of the theater building, and it is therefore ineligible for inclusion in an historic district.

According to current owner, triplex was built to house migrant workers. Rear of complex still sports a couple of outdoor shower stalls used by the migrants (personal communication with Dean Gibboney, 10/3/05.)

This simple Moderne-style apartment complex sports excellent integrity with little change evident. It is therefore eligible for inclusion in an historic district and exemplifies Peoria's farming past as a housing complex for farm workers and general laborers. The building has been very well maintained.

Originally the location of a diminutive mission in 1951, the main church building was constructed in 1952 and still looks much the same as it did when constructed, save the change in tenants. The First Southern Baptist Church community moved from the building in 1990. It is currently the Calvary Baptist Church which performs a live nativity in front of the building during the Christmas season.

The design is simple and standard for a mid 20th-century religious building; the rock-covered façade is unusual for downtown Peoria and characterizes the building as a landmark. Due to excellent integrity and original character of the building, it is eligible for inclusion in an historic district.

The lack of integrity of the main church building tarnishes what little integrity the rear building maintains. Not much is known about these church buildings. The main, Jefferson Street-facing building has had windows replaced and is sheathed in stucco. The rear building maintains its original clapboard siding and most windows. The rear building was once possibly a residence; directly north is the massive Edwards Hotel. The style of the buildings could best be described as minimal traditional.

This simple ranch-style home is unusual for downtown Peoria, but not for same-period neighborhoods across the Valley. It resembles a mass-produced home from the same period, is constructed in the same style and with the same materials (block walls, tile roof ridge, gable-end, steel casement windows), and speaks to the economic changes in Peoria during the early 1950s.

The home has excellent integrity and is therefore eligible for inclusion in an historic district.

This modest and simple early-ranch style home is unusual in style for downtown Peoria, but not in scale, as most homes downtown tend toward quaint. It is similar in style to other popular designs prevalent during the Valley's postwar building boom. The materials are also standard for the period, including block walls and steel casement windows. The modified-hipped roof is unusual for downtown Peoria and a home of the period of a diminutive size.

The home has good integrity and is therefore eligible for inclusion in an historic district.

The strange arrangement of these two buildings on this lot hints to an interesting history, which is unknown. The main home appears to be of a 1970s-vintage (the county assessor does not provide a build date for the home), but this could be due to the modern appearance of the windows, window fenestration, siding and roof material. The smaller building in front was previously used as a residence and appears to be older than the main building. County assessor information does not provide for this building, either.

Though both buildings are well-kept, neither exhibits strong historic integrity and neither are, therefore, eligible for inclusion in a historic district.

The incongruous southern addition to the original lodge lends a confused appearance to the building's façade. Until 1921, masons from Peoria traveled to the Glendale lodge for meetings. The northern portion of this building was constructed in 1921 for the new Peoria Lodge No. 31, according to the ephemera files at the Peoria Historical Society.

The style of the north building is minimal traditional/meeting hall with end gable roof. The south addition sports a false front.

The building is eligible for inclusion in a historic district due to its presence in Peoria's organizational history, despite changes to its exterior. These changes appear to be easily reversible.
